This text provides a clear and well-structured approach to competition law as it operates in the UK. This also includes the law of the European Community, which has direct impact in the UK, and on which UK law is now largely based. The text includes full commentary relating to the Competition Act 1998, including the relevant secondary legislation and guidelines. Recent changes at the Community level, including the block exemption on vertical agreements, along with its guidelines, and the proposed changes to the horizontal block exemptions are also dealt with. The text introduces readers to the basic economic principles underpinning the law, the regulatory agencies, theories and practice of enforcement, and the substantive rules relating to agreements, monopolies and mergers. Common law rules are dealt with to the extent that they remain relevant. The book concludes with an examination of the increasing problems of globalization.
